Camp Smith named MIH Project of the Year

The Masonry Institute of Hawaii hosted the end of the Year luncheon at Honolulu International Country Club on Wednesday, January 29, 2014. Rod Haraga, Director, presented the year in review. Among the highlights of 2013 were two sell-out seminars for Special Inspection of Masonry and Mortar and Grout presented by John Chrysler, President of the Masonry Institute of America. The MCAH/MIH Scholarship Golf tournament held in June, 2013 was a huge success. Four $2,000 scholarships were awarded to Almarine Kitchens, Toby Yamamoto, Hope Sarmiento and Glory Sarmiento. The student chapters for the AIA and ASCE were given a $1,000 donation for their help to the tournament.

According to Lloyd Arakaki, Principal in Charge, the CMU is the ideal material for this project because of its durability and ease of maintenance. In addition, the use of regular, split faced and colored CMU offers greater design flexibility and variety in pattern and texture. Bands of varying colors and textures add interest to the geometric pattern of the CMU and a scalar element to the visual composition. It also avoids the need for added finishes or paint. The optimal combination of beauty, flexibility, economy and durability makes CMU an ideal material for this project.

MIDDLE STREET TRANSIT CENTER WINS NATIONAL AWARD

Mr. John Ida of Urban Works was notified that the Middle Street Transit Center was awarded the NCMA award for 2013. Congratulations to the design and construction teams for this prestigious national recognition.

Middle Street Transit Center

Mr. John Ida describes the selection of using heavy, solid burnished faced CMU to provide openness of the platform area and roof. The CMU walls doubles as a structural and finish material for both exterior and interior. The dark gray of the solid, burnished face block walls provides a contrast to the light and airy steel structure of the butterfly roof above. A stacked bond pattern was chosen to create clean and minimal lines.
